

New British Fleet's Commander to Follow Nimitz's Directions

MELBOURNE, Dec. 12.—Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander of the new British Pacific Fleet, indicated today that Britain's contribution in the war against the Japanese in the Pacific would best be confined to sea and air support.

The British admiral, who commanded the British fleet units which sank the German battleship Scharnhorst made his comment in reply to a question as to whether British soldiers were coming to the Pacific.

He said the view in England was that the best contribution Britain could make would be a navy supported by air; that supply arrangement would become too complicated if troops also were sent.

He expressed the belief that a concentration of fleets in the Pacific would have considerable effect on shortening the war because Japan is dependent on sea power and aircraft.

One effect of this marshaling of sea power in the Pacific probably would mean that the Japanese Navy would not seek to engage the Allied warships, but would retire, the admiral said.

"But if she does retire," Sir Bruce continued, "the Japanese will still be dependent on transport and his supply problems will become more acute. He has got to supply his army in Burma."

Sir Bruce said all his future arrangements depended on his seeing Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, American Pacific Fleet commander, under whose jurisdiction the British fleet would operate.

Wants to See Nimitz. "I've got to see what he wants to do," the admiral said. "He may say he'd like to have me detach forces to support Gen. MacArthur or he may say detach the whole fleet for that purpose."

He asserted one of the main reasons the British Fleet was in Australian waters was to make contact between the British and Australians. Another was that the Japanese Fleet will be under me."

He said heavy demands would be made on Australia for the fleet's support.

That support, he said, will be dock and depot facilities and food. Approximately $41,000,000 will be spent by June on services and supplies for the fleet, he said.

As well, important capital works costing another $41,000,000 will be available, including the Sydney graving dock which, when completed, soon will be the biggest and most modern in the Southern Hemisphere.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—The British battleship Howe, 35,000-ton dreadnaught of the King George V class, will be the flagship of Admiral Fraser's new British Pacific Fleet.

The 745-foot Howe, with her 10 14-inch main battery and innumerable smaller guns, carries some 14,000 tons of armor plating alone.

Lessons learned in aerial warfare are incorporated in the ship, commissioned in 1942. She carries a complement of 1,500 officers and men.

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld the Government contention that the exhibitors fostered an "unreasonable monopoly" in Tennessee, Alabama and Kentucky in violation of the antitrust laws, and forbade their acquisitions outside Nashville "except after an affirmative showing that such acquisition will not unreasonably restrain competition."

Certain incorporate arrangements also were ordered abandoned.

Justice Douglas wrote the 5-1 decision of the court, with Justice Roberts dissenting. Justices Frankfurter, Murphy and Jackson did not participate in the case.

In its only other formal opinion, the court unanimously dismissed an attempt of the Order of Railway Conductors to nullify election and certification of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen as bargaining agents for road conductors on the Pennsylvania Railroad. The court said no such relief could be granted because the National Mediation Board was not made a party to the legislation.

It was the board which held the election and issued the certification.

$1,000 Gift to Library Honors Civic Leader

A gift of $1,000 in memory of Charles A. Goldsmith, civic leader and philanthropist, to the $30,000 fund being sought for a Cleveland Park community library by the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' Association, was announced last night at a committee meeting at 2800 Woodley road N.W.

The gift, made by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Thalhimer of Richmond, Mr. Goldsmith's son-in-law and daughter, helped swell the total of pledges and donations to more than $20,000.

Original pledges of $500 from Jelleff's, Inc. and from Eugene Meyer, publisher of the Washington Post, were raised to $1,000 each at the session last night.

Added to the $30,000 being sought by the association's Library Committee will be $30,000 appropriated by the District government.

The proposed library will be dedicated to service men and women from the Cleveland Park area. Plans include a hall to be used as a community auditorium.

Weather

stranded thousands, jammed traffic and closed schools.

The winter's worst snowstorm reaching a depth of 18 inches in some Western Pennsylvania counties, has killed five persons, isolated some communities, curtailed war production and snarled communications and transportation systems.

Downtown traffic jams in Pittsburgh were described by transportation officials as the worst they ever experienced.

Schools were closed, as were many stores whose clerks were unable to report for work.

In Erie, snow ranging from 6 to 18 inches was reported. The city was snowbound, with all traffic suspended by huge drifts which made principal thoroughfares impossible.

Two houseboats sank in the Allegheny River at Pittsburgh from the weight of the snow on the roofs. Their occupants were unharmed.

The Midwest was digging out of snow as deep as 13 inches in some regions, with the center of the storm located in the East. Traffic by land, air and sea was slowed, and at least 30 fatalities had been reported, mostly as a result of hazardous driving conditions.

The heaviest snowfall, the Weather Bureau reported, extended eastward from Central Illinois and Lower Michigan into Pennsylvania and Western New York.

The western half of Virginia was covered with snow up to 10 inches deep, while heavy falls were reported from mountainous sections of Maryland, where snowfalls and cinderling trucks were in operation.

State police issued warnings to motorists to proceed cautiously over ice and snow-covered highways.

In West Virginia the storm snapped telephone and power lines, closed schools and halted traffic on many mountain routes.

At Abingdon, Va., heavy snow covered the skylights of tobacco warehouses yesterday and forced postponement of opening sales of the Abingdon burley tobacco market.

Buyers today were to begin bidding for some 4,000,000 pounds of burley in the eight warehouses.

Mrs. Margaret Rome, First Graduate Nurse At Garfield, Dies

Mrs. Margaret Rome, 79, the first nurse to be graduated from Garfield Memorial Hospital, died of a heart attack last night at the home of her niece, Mrs. Dorothy De Graffenreid, 315 First street S.E.

Mrs. Rome received her nursing diploma in June, 1891, and was presented a silver memorandum book by Mrs. James A. Garfield, widow of President Garfield.

Soon afterward she was placed in charge of the Woman's Hospital and Dispensary, at Maryland avenue and Sixth street N.E. In 1893 she was appointed superintendent of nurses at Emergency Hospital, when the nursing staff consisted of two day nurses and one night nurse.

Recalled Building Collapse. In later years Mrs. Rome recalled that shortly after she joined the staff at Emergency, the old Ford's Theater Building, at 511-15 Tenth street N.W., collapsed, killing 22 Government clerks and injuring 68.

Mrs. Rome told how the victims were lined row after row on the hospital floors and how frantic relatives crowded into the hospital to search for members of their families who had been employed in the building.

The building in which Abraham Lincoln was shot, at the time was being used for offices, and later as an Army medical museum. Emergency Hospital then was located at Fifteenth street and Ohio avenue N.W.

Mrs. Rome represented Garfield Hospital at an organizational meeting of the National Alumnae Association of Graduate Nurses in New York.
